

Abstract

The degree project is devoted at development of the portable digital tester for determining the wires of telephone cable at carrying out of installation works. The basic electric scheme of a sampler, the printed-circuit board, programs of reception, transfer and indication are developed. The substantiation of introduction of the developed cable sampler in manufacture is confirmed by technical and economic calculations.