

Abstract

A model of the complex, designed to study the construction of hybrid local area networks. The aim of this work is: modeling of the integrated network. Objectives: To explore options for LAN connectivity, network installation on copper cable and fiber optic cable network to create their interaction. Installing the management server with access to the Internet