

Abstract

In this thesis project addresses the issues of software-configurable network technology implementation (software defined network, SDN), and analysis of transport data network. Using a variety of codecs, to go beyond the calculation of the load on the network, which will participate in the project, and how they affect the quality of service parameters, Cisco IOS commands were carried out to adjust. The effectiveness of the system, confirmed the technical and economic reports.