

Abstract

In this thesis project proposed organization of communication channels in the network of "KazTransOil" JSC on the territory of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

Organization of communication channels in the network "KazTransOil" for the purpose of creating advanced, flexible digital transport networks, which will provide an opportunity to raise the level of reliability of the transmitted information flows to a higher level and thus provide quality assurance services, when entering the trunk of the international corridor Europe – Russia – Kazakhstan – China, from Europe to Asia via the shortest route.

The meeting also discussed issues of health and safety and written business plan for the project.