

Abstract

In the real final work the analysis of creation of a private corporate network on the basis of VPN for the purpose of the organization of a uniform network is investigated.

The option of creation of VPN is for this purpose chosen, the scheme of the organization of a uniform network with application of the VPN technology is developed, the network equipment is chosen, the corresponding calculations are made.

The feasibility study is provided and questions of safety of activity are considered.