

Annotation

In this degree to work it is considered «Design of the electric motor of a direct current with the improved vibration characteristics». General information about cars of a direct current, the principle of his work and a structure has been collected.

In the section on safety and activity safety measures, ways on opposition to fire and calculations for noise reduction in operating time with the engine of a direct current were considered.

In the economic section prime cost decrease in wastes of the design engine of a direct current is described.