

Annotation

In this project, a mobile software product was developed, the purpose of which is to train and maintain the level of knowledge of employees of companies and firms. The product is developed with the help of software such as Android Studio version 2.3.2 in the programming language Java version 7. The application is playable and provides the opportunity to choose the discipline of training, choosing a solution for your department and saving the achievements in the database. Android Studio and the whole Android platform.

Additional points for solving problems arising from problems.

The conclusion of this diploma work is a potential, economically justified, ready-to-use software product.