

Anatation

In this work, we have developed mobile apps contains information about LLP "Almaty Energo Sbyt" for the Android operating system in the programming language Python. In this paper we consider how to use mobile application, you can monitor daily use of electricity, water and gas as well as using this application in online mode you can pay for gas electricity and water from the comfort of home. The application we created using the Python language programirovanie become presently very popular. In addition, in the last two chapters dealt with the lifesafety issues is the feasibility study and calculated the price development of the project.