

Annotation

In this diplom project examined the development of application software for the operating system Android, is the so-called "home screen", which is an alternative part of the system user interface. This application may be published in the mobile application store Google Play and meets all the requirements for publication requirements. In addition, the analysis made working conditions for the development of the application under consideration. Also composed the economic justification of the project, confirming its economic viability