

Annotation

This diploma project is devoted to the creation of a corporate web site for energy companies. For site's implementation were used programming languages such as PHP, JavaScript, HTML, CSS, etc. Web-interface is developed using the latest web technologies and corresponds to program software's modern standards. In the economic part was made a business plan of the project, which confirmed its economic viability. In the life safety part was made analysis of working conditions, calculation of lighting and noise level.

The diploma project consists of an introduction, five sections, conclusion. The introduction reveals the main purpose of the work, also urgency of creating a website. Sections describe the stages from the design structure to the created full-featured site. In conclusion, the main conclusions on the work done and summarized the study.