

Annotation

In given diploma project are considered technologies of mobile applications development. Process of mobile application's creation is shown with using IDE Android Studio. The flexible functional, that is pleasing visually and convenient on intuitive level, is demonstrated. Created application is created for education of novice programmers, who is interested in studying of objective-oriented programming language C#. In addition to all was analyzed EMF of cellular range and was carried out technical and economical justification of mobile application's creation.