

Abstract

In this diploma project, the administrative part of the main site of the Almaty University of Energy and Communications is being developed. The main goal of this work is to write a software product using new technologies. A number of these technologies will also be described, which will be used. Such as PHP 7 programming language, MySQL DBMS, Denwer server and Drupal CMS system. Analyzes of working place conditions during operation of the project being developed are also given. Economic analyzes necessary for the implementation of the program will also be calculated.