

Annotation

In the thesis of this work, the interface software for the protection in information has been set up in local area networks. The interface of the program was written in high Java programming language. The program operates in client – server mode, that is, two interfaces were created, the first for the client, and the second for the server.

The terms of life security was analyzed activities, protection of labor and production factors. In addition, in the economic part, the efficiency of financial work was calculated