

Abstract

In this thesis project examines the design of the access network based on GPON technology in fourth microdistrict of Aksu city . In the calculation of the project are counting network settings GPON. In part safety of vital functions is calculated ventilation, artificial lighting and electrical safety . In economic part the calculation of general capital investments is produced for realization of project and economic efficiency.