Annotation

The subject of the graduation project: «Development of corporate software for organizing processes of interaction and coordination of employees».

The purpose of the study: analyze the workflow of office staff and develop software that allows increasing the productivity of specialists.

During the design and development of the graduation project, the scope of development was determined, the application and its analogues were analyzed, client and server development technologies such as HTML, CSS, JavaScript, Angular, PostgreSQL, Java, Spring MVC, MyBatis, which helped in the creation of a multi-user client-server application, as well as the economic justification of the graduation project and measures to improve working conditions in the framework of the project.

The result of the project was a full-featured application that allows you to improve the work of professionals by speeding up the processes of their coordination and self-organization.