

Annotation

Development of a system of accounting sales of pharmacies. In addition to the information can be attributed: the provision of information on drug carriers, providing complete information about warehouses, maintaining full control of the shelf life of drugs, increasing the level of the contract number , control over productive work, providing comprehensive information for patients .T. B. When building an information search engine, one of the object-oriented programming languages is used-C# database and MS SQL Server.