Annotation

This graduation paper is based on the introduction of a new guide to the work of the Companion Information System, and the easy way to deliver information to consumers by incorporating news into the system.

The Diploma Project has a general analysis of MySQL databases, Denwer web server and PHP programming language. The reason for choosing this software is that of the project organization.

The diploma project consists of the introduction, the basic section, the software used, the methods of work and the selection of tools, the process of work.

The system that organizes the information and communication system reflects all the features and functioning principles.