

Annotation

The purpose of this graduation project is to develop a web application that will allow you to play the main format of music files from a mobile device. In the thesis project implemented functions for viewing and requesting storage space, as well as operations for adding, deleting and playing mp3 files. The developed mobile application is convenient to use and economical.

Music player based on the Android application is currently popular in the market. The final development of the Android operating system provides developers with an excellent platform that can master popular computer technologies combined with acquired knowledge and master the development of a mobile application.