Annotation

In this project was developed a mobile application for translating sign language into recognizable text. The application was created for the Android operating system in the development environment Thunkable. The transfer is carried out by connecting the application to the microcontroller via Bluetooth. Interface editing functions have also been added. For ease of use, the interface has been made as intuitive as possible.

Also discussed issues of human life safety and produced an economic analysis.