

Annotation

This thesis project aims to develop a portable laser engraver with the ability to engrave a variety of materials and surfaces. An analysis of various laser engraving systems has been carried out, a selection of a controller, motors, support structure, laser modules and software has been made. The project is designed as a test sample, the technical solution of which is confirmed by a feasibility study.