Annotation

The theme of the graduation project is "Automatic plant watering with remote control".

The diploma project provides ways to create devices to control soil moisture of plants. The Arduino IDE programs were chosen as the basis and the necessary algorithms were written using this environment. The relevance of this project in everyday life, as well as the technical characteristics of each attached parts were also considered. In the economic unit were calculated the cost of Assembly of the device and payback.