

Annotation

This thesis is designed to create a search robot that must be active in disaster areas, such as destroyed buildings, where rescue teams cannot work because of many technical difficulties. The basis was Arduino Uno. Required for them algorithms are created in the program environment Arduino IDE. In the section devoted to the safety of life and work studied the requirements and security measures when using the robot. In the economic section of the project, we discussed the project.