

Annotation

The graduation project is devoted to the development of an automated control system «Smart Home». A review of existing project, identified their features and disadvantages. In the course of this work, a simulation of the control and monitoring system of a smart home was made. The software is designed to ensure efficient and safe operation of the control and monitoring system. As a result of the work, a system layout was created reflecting the work of the main functions and mechanisms.