

Annotation

The diploma project developed a device to prevent accidents on the pipeline with the help of pressure and temperature sensors. To create a tool, sensors were studied, design parameters were calculated. The devices needed to control the temperature and pressure sensors and display the received signals were selected. Calculations were made on the safety of life and technical and economic indicators.