Annotation

This diploma project provides technological methods for implementing one of the main sections of the "Smart home" system. The Arduino project process describes the structure and types of microcontrollers and their differences from other microcontrollers. In this work, the control system is designed using the principle of operation of the Bluetooth module. The main goal of the diploma project is to create an automated microprocessor system "Smart home" in Arduino microcontrollers.