

Summary

This thesis deals with issues related to the automation of processes used in greenhouses. A prototype remote access system with plant health control was created.

Life safety issues were also considered, a business plan was drawn up and a payback period for the developed project was calculated.