

Annotation

This diploma project presents an interactive two-way radio element control system using the Arduino hardware-computing platform via an Android application. In this paper, we have clearly studied the principle of operation of the I / O device, its connection and data transfer using a Bluetooth module for further control using an Android device.