

Annotation

The theme of the graduation project is: «development of an automated sensor data monitoring system».

The object of study is the separation unit of the complex oil treatment unit. In this project, a process control and management system based on industrial controllers was developed. The developed system can be used in monitoring, control and data collection systems at various industrial enterprises. This system will increase productivity, improve accuracy.