

Annotation

The graduation project investigated the development of a wireless system for monitoring the temperature of the installation using Zabbix wireless technology.

Graphic programming for wireless monitoring of the block temperature using the Zabbix block. Statistical processing of the measured block temperature values has been carried out.

The calculation of technical and economic indicators for an individual task and a number of issues on life safety were resolved.