ABSTRACT

This graduation project is devoted to the creation of an information portal for the company, which includes news support and a way of communication between employees. The designed information system is being developed in the programming language PHP. Also considered is the issue of information output on the financial condition of the company.

Considered and resolved issues of life safety. The zeroing of electrical installations, as well as the ergonomics of the employee's workplace, are calculated.

The project carried out a feasibility study for the project, calculated the cost of the work performed, determined the price of intellectual work, calculated the economic efficiency of the work performed and the payback period of this software product.