Annotation

The diploma project is designed to create an information system "distance learning" in Web technology on the current topic of development based on computer information technologies of modern times. The diploma project provides an overview of information and telecommunications technologies, their application and development prospects.

Project data is managed by the MySQL database management system. The interface is designed in the PHP scripting language. From the project documentation, you can find UML diagrams that reflect the project's model model and a detailed description of the system. The project is designed mainly to meet current needs.