

Abstract

The project "Development of a database and information system for an online store" is aimed at developing a site for managing an application for LLP of the company "KBP Group". The main requirements for this project is the automated management of the store.

In the project, a structure was developed, all possible processes, their optimization, a database was built for the developed application, a site-management interface and its software implementation in PhP using the Sublime Text text editor, which in turn was developed in languages such as C ++ and Python.

Also, in the future, economic issues were studied and substantiated and life safety was considered.