

Annotation

In this thesis, the scheme of the sound alarm device based on infrared radiation was considered. Also in the work, the time and material costs for the production of the printed circuit board and the device were calculated.

The issues of life safety and economic efficiency are considered.