

Abstract

In the dissertation described the mobile devices's sound paths OQAM, which takes into account the peculiarities of sound perception by the human auditory system, and the results of the experiment on developed software in real conditions on selected sound signals confirm high accuracy in comparison with data obtained from subjective-statistical examinations.